About the Author:

Alejandro O. Tamargo (Al) was born in Habana, Cuba in 1949. He was one of the thousands of children sent by themselves to the United States from Cuba by their parents in the early 1960s, to get away from the Fidel Castro communist regime.

When he was reunited with his parents in 1963, the family moved to the D.C. area in Maryland where Alejandro grew up, went to school, worked, and lived most of his life, after the age of thirteen.

In 1969 he met his wife Patricia who was born and raised in Washington D.C. They were married in 1971. They had the last of three boys in 1979, and two of them are currently living on the west coast, and the youngest is currently living in New Zealand. Patricia and Alejandro will be celebrating their forty-fifth wedding anniversary the summer of 2016.

Al worked in the Commercial/ Industrial paint industry, in various sales and management positions for over forty-four years, and just retired from that industry at the end of May, 2015.
